Special-needs students told to stay home: Study

Findings. Principals cite lack of resources in 'widespread practice,' advocacy group says

Half of elementary principals have told students with special needs to stay home from school for all or some of the day, in part because there's not enough help for them, a provincewide survey has found.

"We were really surprised by the finding," said Annie Kidder, executive director of People for Education, which surveyed 1,349 Ontario schools and for the first time asked about forcing children to stay home after hearing numerous complaints from parents.

The research and advocacy group recommends the Ontario government put enough resources in schools so that this "widespread practice" doesn't continue.

"Principals gave a lot of different and understandable reasons — to do with safety or that the child couldn't cope being at school," said Kidder. "But the biggest reason for them not being there is lack of support."

The report identifies a number of concerns around special education, including too-large ratios of students to special education teachers, as well as caps on how many students a principal can refer for psychological assessment — sometimes just two per year.

At Adam Beck public school in Toronto's Beaches neighbourhood, more than a dozen children with autism are served by the equivalent of 1.5 assistants. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

New funding model

- In a written statement, Education Minister Liz Sandals said the province is phasing in a new funding model over the next four years that "will provide greater fairness and equity in the education system to ensure our most vulnerable students are getting the support they need."
- Annie Kidder, executive director of People for Education, said under the new formula, some boards will receive more money, and some less, but funding is not the only issue: There's also a lack of consistency in special education across Ontario.

Unmarked police car

No answers for family amid SIU silence on crash

Natasha Carla Abogado FACEBOOK

Months after her death, the family and friends of Nastasha Carla Abogado still have no idea how her final moments unfolded before she was struck and killed by an unmarked police car.

Abogado died Feb. 12. The 18-year-old was crossing the street after getting off a bus near St. Clair and Warden. She was hit by a York Regional Police car that was unmarked but driven by an on-duty officer.

The teen died at the scene. The provincial Special Investigations Unit is probing the incident but no information has been released in the nearly 10 weeks since her death.

Those close to the teen have started a social media campaign, #JusticeForCarla, seeking answers.

Carla's father Guillermo Abogado has trouble sleeping and hasn't been able to return to work. More information would help bring some closure, he said.

He and wife Sonia have retained a lawyer and asked the SIU for a meeting. Since there is no "final report," a meeting hasn't been arranged, Abogado said.

"They are still doing some investigation," said Abogado, who came to Canada from the Philippines in 2003. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Paris cops probed over alleged rape of T.O. woman

Police headquarters. Lawyer of accused says client had sex, but was consensual

French prosecutors have opened a preliminary investigation into two Paris police officers in connection with the alleged rape of a Toronto woman at the city's police headquarters.

France's interior minister said in a statement Sunday that both police officers, who haven't been named, as well as a third who is considered a witness, have been suspended pending the investigation's outcome.

Prosecutors are investigating an accusation of gang rape made by the Canadian tourist last week.

French media reports, citing police sources, say the 34-year-old woman, reportedly the daughter of a police chief and in Paris for a two-week holiday, first met the off-duty officers in an Irish pub close to the police headquarters on Tuesday.

The reports say she later agreed to follow them to their workplace.

The police headquarters, on an island in the Seine River, is home to Paris judicial police.

The reports say the woman allegedly left the headquarters distraught and told another officer that she had been raped.

Four officers were initially placed in police custody following the accusations.

The two officers subject to the preliminary investigation were released on bail Saturday, while the two others were released without charges.

The woman has undergone a medical examination and DNA samples have been taken, according to the reports.

Sebastien Schapira, a lawyer for one of the accused, denied his client did anything wrong.

He told The Canadian Press the officer had sexual relations with the woman but they were "consensual."

Schapira said the woman has returned home since laying the accusations, but he believes she should be in France while the investigation is carried out.

"We'd like her to come back to France," he said in an interview.

Canada's Department of Foreign Affairs wouldn't confirm whether the woman had left the country, citing privacy reasons.

France's Interior Minister, Bernard Cazeneuve, said in Sunday's statement the two officers at the centre of the investigation will face the consequences if they are found guilty and that a disciplinary inquiry within the force is already underway.

Lawsuit. Condo buyers sue over developer's promise of 'underground access'

Wendy Ji believes in getting what you pay for — so she's spearheading a $30-million class-action lawsuit against a Toronto condo developer.

Ji, 26, says she bought her two-bedroom unit in Emerald City Condominiums at Don Mills and Sheppard in 2010 for one key reason: Developer Elad Canada said the 36-storey tower, when built, would have "easy underground access" to the Sheppard subway line and nearby Fairview Mall.

But when Ji was handed the keys in February, there was a problem: There was no tunnel.

The lawyer for condo developer Elad disputes the claim, saying "there was never any representation that there would be underground access" from the condo building to the subway or directly to Fairview Mall.

Wendy Ji SUSAN PIGG/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Ji bought the $460,000 condo with backing from her parents, who were taken with a promotional virtual video — "they must have watched it 10 or 15 times" — showing a subway train pulling into a station with stairs marked Emerald City. She, like other residents, is seeking a 10 to 15 per cent rebate, saying the lack of direct access has devalued their units.

Anti-immigration flyers prompt call for charges

'Hateful.' Premier condemns literature targeting Brampton's Sikh community, but expert doubts it will run afoul of Criminal Code

An anti-immigration flyer has angered Ontario's premier and prompted calls for charges, but a successful prosecution under hate-crime laws faces an uphill climb, an expert said Sunday.

The flyers targeted the Sikh community in Brampton, prompting the head of a Sikh group to call for criminal charges on Sunday.

"Otherwise ... in the future other people are going to start doing that. And they're going to be hard to control," said Ranjit Dulay, chairman of the Ontario Sikhs & Gurdwara Council.

The leaflets show a black-and-white picture of a group of Caucasians above a separate photograph of a group of Sikhs with captions that read "from this ... to this ..." Underneath the two pictures is a caption: "Is This What You Want?"

Premier Kathleen Wynne railed against the flyers, calling them "hateful" in a statement issued Saturday. She repeated her comments at a Sikh celebration in Toronto on Sunday.

Richard Moon, a University of Windsor law professor, said it remains to be seen if the handouts are "extreme" enough to run afoul of Criminal Code provisions.

"One of the challenges with considering this particular flyer to be hate speech under the Criminal Code is that it doesn't attribute anything to members of any group," Moon said.

"It says almost nothing, other than, 'Here's what our community once looked like, here's what it looks like now, perhaps we should rethink immigration policy so we don't continue down that road.'"

Brave collie saves chihuahua from wily coyote

Georgie, with owner Julie Twynham, left, is being called a hero for saving Willow, with owner Carolyn Falle, from a coyote. CARLOS OSORIO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

To say Willow the chihuahua was almost dinner for a coyote in an Etobicoke ravine would be an exaggeration. At barely four pounds, the nine-month-old pooch would have been "an hors d'oeuvre, at most," says her owner Carolyn Falle.

The only thing that saved Willow from the jaws of certain death when she came snout to snout with a coyote during a daybreak walk in West Deane Park was Georgie.

"Willow is so little. She really wouldn't be here today if it wasn't for him," says Falle, 39. "No question, Georgie saved the day."

Georgie is a border collie who knows his job, notes his proud owners Andrew McCausland, 65, and his wife Julie Twynham, 53.

"He was just doing what he was bred to do: protect the livestock," McCausland says.

The trouble started on March 14, when Willow trotted off behind another dog, Maple, after Maple took off barking.

Alarmed, Falle followed them into the woods, ducking under fallen trees and wading through knee-deep snow, calling for the dogs to come back. But when she finally caught a glimpse of them ahead, Falle also noticed two large coyotes crouching nearby and licking their chops.

Falle grabbed a stick and screamed at the coyotes to stay back. Just then, Georgie came bounding through the woods followed by Gracie, McCausland and Twynham's other border collie.

The coyotes fled, with Georgie, Gracie and Maple in hot pursuit, leaving a bewildered Willow behind.

Somehow, the smaller of the two coyotes managed to circle back and ran at Willow, pushing her over with its snout.

It was just enough time for Falle to crash through the branches and scoop up her beloved pet.

But Georgie was the real hero, she says.

Military observers speak under armed pro-Russian guard

Eight European military observers held prisoner by pro-Russia forces in eastern Ukraine were marched out under armed guard on Sunday to give public assurances that they weren't being mistreated.

Germany's foreign minister condemned the appearance as "revolting" and a violation of the men's dignity. Four members of the team are German.

One of the observers, a Swedish officer, was released later in the day for medical reasons.

The insurgents in Slovyansk have taken a number of people hostage, including journalists and pro-Ukraine activists, as they strengthen their control in the east of the country in defiance of the interim government in Kyiv and its Western supporters.

On Sunday, they captured three Ukrainian security service officers, who were shown to Russian journalists bloodied and blindfolded with packing tape. Also on Sunday, a crowd of several hundred pro-Russia activists stormed the television broadcasting centre in Donetsk, the regional capital of eastern Ukraine, to demand that Russian state channels be put back on the air. The Kyiv government last month blocked the broadcasts of the Russian channels, which serve as propaganda tools for the Kremlin.

Two 20th-century popes now saints

Day of four popes. Pope Francis offered each praise, saying John called the council and he hailed John Paul's family focus

Two 20th-century popes who changed the course of the Catholic Church became saints Sunday as Pope Francis honoured John XXIII and John Paul II in a delicate balancing act aimed at bringing together the conservative and progressive wings of the church.

As if to drive the message of unity home, Francis invited retired Pope Benedict XVI to join him on the altar of St. Peter's Square, the first time a reigning and retired pope have celebrated Mass together in public in the history of the church. The day became a historic day of four popes

An estimated 800,000 people — many of them from John Paul's native Poland — filled St. Peter's, the streets around it and bridges over the Tiber River, a huge turnout but only half the crowd that came out for John Paul's beatification. John reigned from 1958-1963 and is a hero to liberal Catholics for convening the Second Vatican Council. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ferry disaster. South Korea's PM resigns, takes 'all responsibility'

South Korea's prime minister resigned Sunday over the government's handling of a ferry sinking that has left more than 300 people dead or missing and led to widespread shame, fury and finger-pointing, blaming "deep-rooted evils" in society for the tragedy.

South Korean executive power is concentrated in the president, so Chung Hong-won's resignation appears to be symbolic. Chung's resignation comes amid rising indignation over the tragedy. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Survivors recall tales of traumas

Annual Holocaust remembrance. On April 28, Israel will stand still to honour the six million victims of the Nazi genocide

In an annual ritual, Israel will come to a standstill Monday morning for the country's official Holocaust remembrance day. Air raid sirens will wail across the country as pedestrians stop in their tracks and drivers exit their vehicles and bow their heads to honour the six million victims of the Nazi genocide of the Second World War that wiped out a third of world Jewry.

The Associated Press asked a group of Holocaust survivors to share their strongest memory.

Asher Aud (Sieradski), 86 (Poland): Married, three children and 10 grandchildren. Retired from Israel Military Industries, a state-owned weapons manufacturer.

Asher Aud's odyssey reads like a history of the Holocaust's horrors. Over six years, he was separated from his parents and siblings in his native Polish town of Zdunska Wola, then scavenged for scraps of bread, and staved off a debilitating illness alone in the Lodz ghetto before he was taken to the Auschwitz death camp.

Of all the atrocities he endured, Aud said parting from his mother at the age of 14 was the most traumatic.

In September 1942, the Nazis rounded up the Jewish community inside the local cemetery and were preparing to deport them.

"The Germans walked among us and anytime they saw a mother with a child, they tore the child from her arms and threw them into the back of trucks."

"I looked around and I just said 'Mother, this is where we are going to be separated,'" he said.

Shmuel Bogler, 84 (Hungary): Married, two children, five grandchildren. Retired police officer.

Shmuel Bogler never had the opportunity to say goodbye to his family, rounded up from their home in Bodrogkeresztur and transported to Auschwitz.

"The first thing they did was beat us and separate the women from the men. It happened so quickly, I couldn't even part from my mother and sister," he said.

Jacob Philipson Armon, 76 (The Netherlands): Married, two children, one grandchild. Retired from Israeli defence contractor Rafael.

For Jacob Philipson Armon, memories are hard to come by. He was only two when Holland was captured by the Nazis, and three years later he went into hiding, like his more famous compatriot Anne Frank. The family's five children were dispersed among various non-Jews who risked their lives to protect them.

Asher Aud shows a number tattooed on his arm by the Nazis at Auschwitz. SEBASTIAN SCHEINER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The most traumatic thing he recalls was when German troops kicked down the door of the home of his protector, Kit Winkel, and searched for Jews.

"They burst into the house and started to search for documents, turning over furniture and tearing down wallpaper ... I sat frozen, not daring to move," he said.

What goes up must come down

HOW TO ROLL
Alison Griffiths
metronews.ca

There may be storm clouds hovering over the stock market. Perhaps it's an opportune time to follow an old investor's adage: Sell in May and come back on St. Leger Day — the latter being the final event of the British horse racing season, falling in mid-September.

Statistics certainly support a pattern of hot-weather doldrums. Going back to 1926 the stock market's average annual summertime gain is just over four per cent, compared to seven per cent for the November-to-April period.

This year there may even be a stronger reason to lighten up on stocks and equity mutual funds: We're all waiting for a market tumble of more than 10 per cent.

Corrections or pullback of less than 10 per cent are common and occur at least once a year, sometimes more. There have been five of them in the last three years.

Bigger declines, in the 20 per cent range, hit the market about every three and a half years.

Oh dear.

Guess when the last doozy struck? That would be the summer of 2011. We are right on target for another one in the next six months.

But before you rush off to sell everything, think again. Assuming your current investments are quality ones, consider market declines as an opportunity.

1. Have cash. Cash is opportunity personified. When the market heads south buy more of the strong stocks and funds in your portfolio.

2. Evaluate. You can't put No. 1 into effect unless you know your holdings are top notch. Reassess both mutual funds and stocks. If you have laggards, don't throw good money after bad. Any mutual funds that have not been in the top 25 per cent (called the first quartile) of their category over five years are likely not worth owning. Your adviser or a site such as morningstar.ca can provide this information.

3. Diversify. A market correction is a great time to spread your investment dollars into different regions, such as the U.S., Europe or Asia.

The coming market storm may veer off course, but it doesn't hurt to be prepared.

China censors TV shows on streaming sites

A computer in Beijing shows a Chinese streaming website with a description of The Big Bang Theory, but the site no longer has access to episodes. Chinese authorities have ordered video streaming websites in the country to stop showing four popular American TV shows, representatives from two sites said Sunday. A spokeswoman for Youku, one of the sites, said it had received notification on Saturday not to show the sitcom The Big Bang Theory, political and legal drama The Good Wife, crime drama NCIS and legal drama The Practice. The State Administration of Press, Publication, Radio, Film and Television didn't give a reason for its order, said the spokeswoman, who couldn't be named because of company policy.

50 Shades of Strange: BK's Subservient Chicken is back

Burger King is bringing back one of its strangest advertising creations if you don't count its creepy King: the Subservient Chicken.

The campaign, which was considered groundbreaking when it ran in 2004, featured a website where a giant chicken dressed in garters appeared to perform any task visitors commanded. A costumed actor had been pre-recorded performing hundreds of acts so it would seem as though the chicken was obeying people's orders.

It was an unexpected take on the chain's Have It Your Way slogan, all just to promote a new chicken sandwich. The site got 100 million hits in the two weeks after its launch, according to Burger King.

A decade later, the Miami-based chain is trotting out the Subservient Chicken once again to promote yet another chicken sandwich — a triple-decker called the Chicken Big King that resembles a Big Mac, except with chicken patties.

Underground economy

CRA still has no grand plan for tax evasion

After a three-year effort, the Canada Revenue Agency has failed to produce a new national strategy to combat the underground economy — despite repeated requests to do so from cash-starved provinces.

The provinces have been pressing the agency since late 2010 to update its strategy for extracting taxes from the underground economy.

CHEERS TO CORNER-STORE BEERS

URBAN COMPASS

Matt Elliott
toronto@metronews.ca

You've probably seen the ad by now.

The 30-second spot presents a hypothetical future in which beer and liquor is sold in Ontario corner stores. In it, a bunch of probably-up-to-no-good teens purchase a pile of alcohol from a store clerk who — brace yourselves — doesn't even check for ID.

Horrifying, right?

The spot is the work of Ontario Beer Facts, a group that exists primarily to try to convince Ontarians that the privately-operated Beer Store chain is something we need to keep around. Without it, the theory goes, underage drinking will run rampant and teenagers will be soused on the sauce 24/7.

There are a lot of problems with this argument. Let's start with the fact that there are a great many places — even in Canada — where alcohol is sold in corner stores, without resulting in major social ills or societal collapse. There's no need to conjure up scary hypotheticals when we can just as easily look at, you know, reality.

And consider this: convenience stores already sell cigarettes, a controlled product much the same as alcohol. Following Ontario Beer Facts' logic, this should imply that kids are fiendishly lighting up like existential novelists, but the teen smoking rate in Ontario has been on the decline for decades — even with corner store availability.

But what really frustrates about the Ontario Beer Facts campaign is that they present our options as binary. Either we maintain the status quo where we can only buy cases of beer from the Beer Store, a private company owned by three foreign-owned corporations, or we throw open the doors to unrestricted sales at all retailers for sheer alcohol anarchy.

It's a false choice, and one that ignores a range of possible reforms to Ontario's current alcohol sale regulations.

As an example, think about this: The government already maintains a licensing system for bars and restaurants that serve alcohol. Why not extend that system so that they also license retailers to sell alcohol to go?

That'd give MPPs the ability to impose all kinds of regulations, which they love to do anyway.

They could control product selection, limit the number of licenses available in an area, or control how much floor space can be devoted to alcohol sales. And neighbours would have an opportunity to object to applications in their community. Most importantly, strict regulations could be placed on making sure purchasers are of legal age.

This kind of system could be rolled out slowly, and work in tandem with existing LCBOs and Beer Stores. It'd increase customer choice, support retailers and — I bet — have very few drawbacks. It's a small change, but one that'd make things a little more open and a lot more fair. Despite the fear mongering, I'd drink to that.

In the deep end

An artist has created a brilliant 3D illusion of a swimming pool that makes for a deeper meaning. The piece seeks to address the impact of Japan's tsunami and the Fukushima nuclear plant disaster of 2011. COURTESY JEROEN BISSCHEROUX

Artist stuns with 3D optical illusion of swimming pool

Dutch artist Jeroen Disscheroux has created the illusion of an empty swimming pool, spread across the ground inside a shopping centre in Osaka, Japan.

From a distance, Disscheroux's artwork — POOL, loss of colour — looks like a two-dimensional painting of a pool. But while standing inside the work the pool's walls appear to drop away, giving the impression that you are floating in mid-air above it. METRO

Installation represents impact of Japan's nuclear disaster

Located in the Grand Front Osaka shopping mall, the work is a perfect spot for a photo-op.

However, there is a more sombre message, as the art serves to highlight the Fukushima nuclear disaster of 2011. The empty, discoloured swimming pool "brings the impact of the disaster back to human proportions," says the artist. METRO

Metaphors

- Disscheroux describes the artwork as a carpet: "A place where we welcome guests." This cosy metaphor aims to encourage play and exploration of the empty space.
- The artist left an area to represent the crisis zone "grey and dark." Disscheroux adds that it's a symbol of the "disastrous consequences" at Sendai.

A good spy always brings the cupcakes

The Americans. Costa Ronin explains the finer points of espionage

LISA WEIDENFELD
Metro World News

The Americans is a show that thrives on never quite revealing exactly what motivates its various spies and government agents. Who can be trusted, and who has a hidden agenda?

While Noah Emmerich's Stan Beeman navigates the intricacies of the FBI, his counterparts in the Russian Rezidentura have found a new face in their midst: Oleg Burov, played by Costa Ronin. Oleg received one of the show's finer introductions, missing an important summons from Rezidentura head Arkady Ivanovich (Lev Gorn) because he was listening to American music too loudly on his headphones. While Arkady was quick to write him off as a rich man's son using his connections to get ahead, Oleg has proven resourceful.

Oleg comes off as pretty confident about his spycraft, but as Ronin warns us, "that's his persona."

Tune in

The Americans airs Wednesday nights at 10 p.m. ET on FX Canada.

Costa Ronin as Oleg Burov in a scene from The Americans. FX CANADA

It's also the case with every character on the show, says Ronin. "Everybody's so good at hiding what they think and hiding what they feel because a small display of weakness can lead to somebody dying."

Oleg's apparent bravado may be more for protection than anything else, even among the KGB agents. "He cannot let them see how smart he is, he cannot let them see how savvy he is, he cannot show them all the cards that he's got."

Don't always assume that stony-faced people in suits would make good agents, though. Ronin says good spies are "the friendliest people you will ever meet, the people who will bring cupcakes to your Sunday brunch, who will pick up your kids from school ... To be the best, you cannot be thought of (as) being a spy."

Though Ronin was initially only signed on for two episodes, the producers decided to keep him on for more of the hit spy drama's second season. As the season has progressed, Oleg has begun a careful dance with Beeman, initiated after a slow-paced but intense car chase, of which Ronin says, "They did have to tell me to slow down a few times." He begins blackmailing Beeman over his involvement with the poker-faced Rezidentura employee Nina (Annet Mahendru), whom Oleg also begins seeing. It's all a careful balancing act. Will it all come crashing down on him?

"The show's about people and how they struggle with what they have to do," says Ronin. What, exactly, will Oleg have to do? Keep watching The Americans to see whether he's just clever enough to stay ahead of the other spies.

Begin Again. Keira Knightley singing? Adam Levine acting?

For Keira Knightley and Adam Levine, filming the movie Begin Again was an experience of firsts.

Knightley, an accomplished actress, sings in the movie, whereas Levine, frontman of the band Maroon 5, acts. The two admitted that leaving their comfort zones made them uneasy, but that they related to each other's nerves.

"I kept telling her she was great and she wouldn't believe me, and she told me that I wasn't bad at acting, either, but I didn't believe her, so it was perfect," Levine said Saturday as the film closed the Tribeca Film Festival.

"I was completely terrified," Knightley, 29, said of her singing.

"I didn't anticipate being as frightened as I was. I said yes to doing it, and I was, 'Oh, it's gonna be fine, it's gonna be fine,' and then suddenly I found myself in a studio with real people who did it for a living and I was like, 'I don't know what I'm doing. I'm pretending.'"

To walk a red carpet for his first acting role, Levine, 35, said he was "blown away." He says he enjoyed the experience so much he might have caught the acting bug.

"My experience was so much fun.... It made me kind of start to like it a little bit, but I don't know. I don't think you can really make those bold declarations, but we'll see," he said.

So how did the two grade each other? Knightley called Levine a "natural entertainer" who was "sensational in this film." Levine, who serves as a judge and mentor on singing competition show The Voice, said that if Knightley were to audition he would want her on his team. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Title tweak

Jackson renames final Hobbit film

Peter Jackson is tweaking the ending of Bilbo Baggins' journey.

The Oscar-winning director says the original title of The Hobbit finale, There and Back Again, felt misplaced since Baggins arrived at his destination in the second film. He says that title better suited a movie that wrapped up a two-part story instead of a trilogy.

So the final film based on the J.R.R. Tolkien fantasy adventure has being renamed The Hobbit: The Battle of the Five Armies.

Jackson wrote about the decision on Facebook, saying that making the films was sometimes like the hobbit's journey itself, "with hidden paths revealing their secrets to us as we've gone along."

He thought about revising the title when the second film opened last year, but said he and the studio, Warner Bros., kept an open mind until a cut of the film was ready.

Matching home to homeowner

Who Lives Here? New show asks strangers to use their detective skills to pair the person with their dwelling

Participants try to match home to homeowner in an episode of the new series Who Lives Here? 3BIRD MEDIA

Whether it's your choice of clothing or career, a new series seeks to explore whether the image presented to outsiders can reveal clues about your most treasured interior space — your home.

In Who Lives Here? which premieres Monday at 10 p.m. ET/PT on W Network, five strangers take turns visiting each other's homes, relying solely on their detective skills and powers of perception to pair each person with his or her respective dwelling. The winner takes home $1,000.

The debut sees an interior designer, security services worker, entrepreneur, TV producer and hairstylist attempting to determine who among them lives in an urban home, converted garage, detached home, loft and bungalow.

"You meet somebody for the first time and you're processing all of this information on a certain level and you're making assumptions about who they are as a person, how they operate, all different aspects," said series narrator Todd Talbot, who also co-hosts Love it Or List It Vancouver.

"I think if you extend those thoughts to where they might live, it paints a picture. I don't mean to get too philosophical about it, but we're very fixated by our outward appearance in public."

The participants don't shy away from critiquing spaces they visit. Talbot said while contestants understand the nature of the show, they can still be affected by observations made by strangers.

"It's hard to hear somebody make fun of your home because I think ultimately that it's a reflection of who you are.

Quoted

"We make these judgments about what we think your house should look like, and really, if it makes you happy, paint your walls neon pink."

Todd Talbot, narrator of Who Lives Here?

And maybe that's not who you are that you show the public, but it is that internal vulnerable side."

Talbot said there are some people who are very bold and love to infuse their space with perhaps an even more magnified version of themselves. But in his experience, more people are hesitant to do so.

"Especially when it comes to selling or showcasing their house, people tend to have this assumption that they need to depersonalize. And I think that idea of depersonalizing sometimes gets sterile to the point where you don't get a sense of who lives there."

George Clooney is ending his streak as Hollywood's most marriage-averse bachelor, as the Ocean's 11 star has reportedly asked girlfriend Amal Alamuddin to marry him, according to People magazine. "George and Amal are trying to keep things very low-key but they also aren't really trying to hide this, it doesn't seem," a source says. "I think it's like they want the people they love to know that this is real, that they plan on being together forever." While it's unclear exactly when Clooney popped the question, Alamuddin was first spotted donning an impressive diamond engagement ring at a dinner with Cindy Crawford and Rande Gerber in Malibu Thursday evening. Clooney and British human rights attorney Alamuddin were first rumoured to be dating in October when they were spotted together in London.

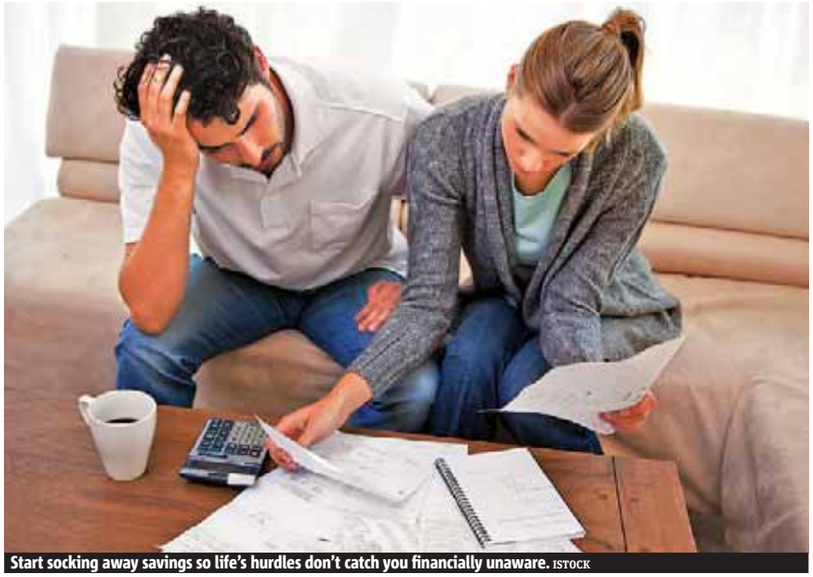
"'Conscious uncoupling' has become a joke among Gwyneth's friends. All she's doing is bragging about how peaceful her divorce is and how she and Chris planned it so perfectly that it is hardly disrupting their lives," a source says. "Gwyneth has always thought she had the most perfect life, and even though she's getting a divorce and both of them are getting bad press, she doesn't care. Five ways we find ourselves buried in a mountain of debt

No money, mo' problems. Prepare for the worst to avoid going into the red

GAIL VAZ-OXLADE
Gail blogs daily at gailvazoxlade.com



Start socking away savings so life's hurdles don't catch you financially unaware. ISTOCK

Often when people meet me out and about, they want to talk about the show. At some point in our conversation they say something like, "How'd they get themselves in such a mess?" These are the people who can't conceive of spending more than they make or having all that debt. Here are five ways it happens:

1. No Money Management Skills

Unfortunately, a lot of people were never taught the skills of money management. Each day people fly by the seat of their pants, hoping that things will turn out OK. Some days they do. Many days they don't, and they end up running around firefighting to stay afloat.

If you don't know how much money you make, how will you know how much money you can spend? If you charge whatever you're buying on your credit card, but you don't know how much you have to spend, how will you pay off that credit card when the bill comes in?

A lack of money management skills is, perhaps, the biggest predictor of financial failure. All the credit counselling, all the bankruptcies, all the income in the world isn't going to save your butt if you don't take the time to figure out how to use what you've got to your advantage. There are rules to follow, work to put in, and self-control to be applied.

2. Underemployment

Some people are just born lazy, y'know. I've worked with more than one person who thinks that earning $14 an hour for 37.5 hours a week is just fine.

Bringing home $400 a week is fine, if you're prepared to live on $400 a week. But most people aren't. They want to drive cars, they want to take vacations, they want to have cellphones and premium cable and everything else their pals have. Sometimes when I tell these people to go make more money, they complain that it'll take away from their Mommy or Daddy jobs. Yet many of those same people spend hours a day doing stuff that doesn't involve their kids. THOSE are the hours you should be spending making more money.

3. Income Goes Down, Spending Doesn't

People get laid off from work. People get sick. People stay home to raise their children. Their incomes go down, sometimes waaay down, but their spending doesn't change. They use their credit cards, lines of credit and overdraft protection to fill the gap and then say they are surprised to find they are buried in debt. Then they get a consolidation loan or wrap the consumer debt up in their mortgages and go out and do it all over again. Of course, these same people could have built themselves a buffer against changes in their financial circumstance, except for Reason No. 4.

4. No Savings

We seem to have developed an aversion to saving. We use the excuse that we can't get much return on our money right now, so what's the point. Ha! Talk about justification. Wow. We've watched the savings rate plummet over the past three decades, hitting the negatives. How can that ever be a good thing?

Of course, if we were willing to live on a little less now so that we'd have a cushion set aside in case we lost our jobs, we wouldn't be pushed into Debt Hell quite so quickly. And if, knowing we were going to take time away from work to raise kids or go back to school, we set aside some money to see us through our future plans, we wouldn't dig ourselves a tunnel to Debt Hell.

5. Getting Sick

Some people believe they will never get sick. It's why people don't bother to get critical illness insurance, disability insurance, or life insurance. In my mid-40s, my best friend died. She was also in her 40s. But before she died, she had years of dealing with MS and then with breast cancer and finally brain cancer.

If she hadn't had disability insurance, she would have been totally screwed. As it was, every month was a challenge financially. And believe me, she didn't need any more aggravation.

Of course, you may not be the one to get sick. It may be your partner, at which point you better have some money to help pay for the things he or she used to. Or it may be a child or an elderly relative that causes you to lose time off work.

There are life events that can contribute to pushing us into debt, but if we had been managing our money all along — saving some, covering our risks with insurance, being responsible with our money — those life events could have been a lot less painful.

Get a little nutty with a pistachio crust for your pork tenderloin

Lean and delicious. Despite its piggy reputation, pork can be leaner than a chicken breast — and it's tasty, too

ROSE REISMAN

"Pork: The Other White Meat" is a slogan used since 1987 to help pork compete with poultry, and it's worked! Ounce for ounce, pork tenderloin has less fat and fewer calories than a chicken breast, and the image that pork was only a fatty meat has been overcome. It is considered an extra lean meat according to government guidelines.

Pork is a good source of iron, zinc, selenium and phosphorus and has been known to fight against Type 2 diabetes, helping to maintain optimal sugar levels. Today, due to better health procedures, you can now eat your pork medium rather than well done.

The old practice was to cook until 160 F, which dried out this lean meat. It is now recommended to cook your pork to just 145 F for a moist and delicious medium-cooked meat.

This flavourful nut crust goes so well with this tender meat. You don't need to salt your pork since the cheese and mustard contain sodium.

When you cook the meat to medium, you won't need a sauce since the meat is so tender and tasty. Feel free to substitute any nuts of your choice. This topping also goes well over chicken or fish. Don't worry if the crumbs don't all stick; just serve them alongside the medallions.

Ingredients

Serves 4

- 1 lb pork tenderloin
- 1 Tbsp. Dijon mustard
- ½ cup finely chopped shelled pistachios
- 3 Tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
- 2 tsp olive oil
- ½ tsp minced garlic

FLASH FOOD

From your fridge to your table in 30 minutes or less

The pistachio-nut crust on this pork tenderloin also goes well over chicken or fish. ROSE REISMAN

Directions

1. Preheat over to 400 F. Sear tenderloin in skillet sprayed with vegetable oil, just until browned on all sides, about 3-4 minutes.

2. Place on a baking sheet. Rub mustard all over tenderloin.

3. In a small bowl, combine pistachios, cheese, olive oil and garlic. Pat onto all sides of tenderloin.

4. Bake until temperature reaches 140 F (medium) or approximately 15-20 minutes.

5. Let rest for 10 minutes, then slice into medallions.

Wake-up call gets Arianna Huffington to redefine success as a good night's sleep

Thrive. In her new book, The Huffington Post's editor-in-chief urges others to look beyond the pursuit of money and power

It took a collapse in her home office resulting from exhaustion and sleep deprivation for Arianna Huffington to truly wake up.

As she worked relentlessly to build her rapidly expanding media company, that fall on a spring morning in 2007 left Huffington with a broken cheekbone, an eye injury and a renewed resolve to re-examine her life.

Yet long before the incident, Huffington acknowledged there were other key moments that should have put her "sleep-deprived, burnt-out-fuelled existence into perspective." The loss of her first child that was stillborn. A breast cancer scare. Her divorce.

In her new book Thrive (Harmony Books), Huffington proposes what she describes as a "Third Metric" to define success — one that extends beyond the pursuit of money and power.

The co-founder and editor-in-chief of The Huffington Post Media Group includes the following as pillars of the Third Metric: self-care, well-being, wisdom, wonder, and giving.

Huffington dedicated Thrive to her late mother, Elli, whom she saw as a true embodiment of the Third Metric, reinforced with anecdotes of the spirited matriarch woven throughout the book.

"My mother was somebody who always lived life with an open heart, making connections with people, not multi-tasking, all of the things that dominate our lives now were things that she realized were not going to lead to a life of meaning and purpose," Huffington said in an interview in Toronto. "She truly believed — she taught my sister and me — in not missing the moment, and that happiness is really about being 100 per cent present in the moment of what we are doing.

"Unfortunately, our minds often want to take us in the past, judging what we've done. Often, this voice that we all have in our heads that I call the obnoxious roommate ... that puts us down, judges us constantly, questions our dreams, or our mind, wants to take us in the future worrying, being anxious about what's going to happen."

In addition to touting the benefits of meditation, the self-described "sleep evangelist" recognized the importance of getting sufficient shut-eye after her collapse and started to read about the scientific value of sleep.

"It's really a miracle drug. It affects our health and well-being, our mental clarity, our capacity for joy," said Huffington, who over time has gone from getting four to five hours of sleep a night to between seven and eight.

At the end of each section of Thrive she offers tips on small steps readers can take immediately to start charting a course to wellness. Among them: aiming to get 30 more minutes of sleep a night. She has also established her own wind-down routine which encompasses turning off all her devices (including an iPhone and four BlackBerrys) and placing them outside of the bedroom.

"We have to recognize that we are addicted to our smartphones and the impact that that has on being able to connect deeply with the people we love. I think we need to make checking our smartphones during dinner as socially unacceptable as picking your nose or scratching your private parts," Huffington said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

"It was wonderful to have a meal without Instagramming it, to watch a sunset without Instagramming it, and to have conversations with my children when they would say something funny I wouldn't feel the temptation to tweet it."

Loss leaders. While Kaila and Tammara didn't win MasterChef Canada, the sour news isn't stopping them from making some sweet career moves

The latest two home cooks ousted from the penultimate episode of MasterChef Canada have both been inspired to make a foray into the professional food world.

Third-place finisher Kaila Klassen of West Kelowna, B.C., who was dismissed from the MasterChef Canada kitchen after making a minor error in the pressure test, is in the process of opening her own restaurant in Kelowna called Krafty Kitchen and Bar.

Tammara Behl, who came fourth, has just launched a Calgary catering company and says she will also make guest appearances on CTV Morning. She's given up her teaching position with the Calgary Board of Education.

Behl was eliminated during a mystery box challenge that featured Italian ingredients chosen by guest judge Joe Bastianich of MasterChef.

Both women said Tuesday that being one of the 16 home cooks on MasterChef Canada meant sacrifices: Behl left her husband and two young children while Klassen relinquished her real estate career during the six weeks spent in Toronto taping the show. But the experience was ultimately rewarding.

"I learned that you really have to learn from people even though they might be less experienced than you or less informed," said Behl. "Everybody has something to teach you and really be nice to your neighbour."

Klassen added: "I know now that it is very, very important to listen to your instincts and listen to your gut and, as Tammarra says, be kind, be genuine, be honest and to listen to the judges. Always listen to the judges. They're always right."

Chefs Michael Bonacini, Alvin Leung and Claudio Aprile, who judged the contestants in Season 1 of MasterChef Canada, will be staying on to helm Season 2, CTV has announced.

Being on MasterChef Canada was like living in a pressure cooker, the two acknowledged, but their love of all things culinary kept them going.

"When we weren't filming, we were thinking about food," said Klassen. "We were thinking about MasterChef, and so it was a very stressful situation, but I think with us all having a commonality with a love for food it was great because we could get away at the end of the night and just talk about food and not have to talk about the show, and just enjoy. It was fantastic. Everyone was amazing." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Finale airs tonight

Eric Chong, a chemical engineer from Oakville, Ont., and Marida Mohammed, a stay-at-home mom from Toronto, will battle it out to win $100,000 in the MasterChef Canada finale, airing tonight on CTV.

Raptors grind out split in Brooklyn

NBA playoffs. Despite faltering after hot-shooting start, young Toronto club leaves N.Y.C. tied 2-2 in series

Game 4

87	79
Raptors	Nets

DeMar DeRozan scored 24 points as the beaten-up Toronto Raptors tied their playoff series with the Brooklyn Nets with a 87-79 victory Sunday.

The victory was the Raptors' first playoff win on the road since a win over Philadelphia way back in 2001.

A hobbling Kyle Lowry added 22 points, while Amir Johnson finished with 17. Patrick Patterson and Greivis Vasquez finished with nine points apiece, and Patterson grabbed a team-high nine rebounds.

The best-of-seven Eastern Conference playoff series heads to Toronto tied at two wins apiece. Game 5 is Wednesday at the Air Canada Centre.

Paul Pierce led the Nets with 22 points, while Mirza Teletovic had 12. Kevin Garnett and Deron Williams finished with 10 points apiece.

The Raptors scored 35 points in the first quarter and led by as much as 17 points — the biggest lead by either team in this series — in what was a dogfight of a game.

But Toronto started to come apart in the second quarter — they ran into foul trouble and couldn't hit shots, and scored a combined 32 points in the second and third quarters.

Still, the nailbiter went into the fourth all tied up 67-67. The Nets took a four-point lead but consecutive baskets by Valanciunas — including a hook shot over future Hall of Famer Garnett — then a three-pointer by Vasquez had the Raptors up by four points with 4:07 to play.

The Nets wouldn't threaten again, and when the final whistle blew the Raptors fans in attendance at Barclays Center stood and applauded the Toronto players off the floor.

The Nets won Games 1 and 3, in what's been an incredibly even matchup all season between these two teams.

Lowry, who came away from Friday's game with a bad right knee and a busted lip, was noticeably limping at times, but coach Dwane Casey had said pre-game: "He's one of the toughest guys I've been around as a guard as far as fighting through things."

NBA playoffs

Clippers stand together against owner Sterling

The Los Angeles Clippers made a silent protest against owner Donald Sterling before Game 4 of their Western Conference playoff series against Golden State. The Warriors made a different kind of statement during the game.

And just like that, a series pulled into a race-related scandal took another twist.

Stephen Curry made a career playoff-high seven three-pointers and scored 33 points, leading the Warriors past the Clippers 118-97 on Sunday to even their first-round series at two games apiece.

The game almost became an afterthought — until tipoff anyway — after an audio recording was posted Saturday online by TMZ purportedly of Sterling making comments urging a woman to not bring black people to his team's games. The alleged comments, which are under investigation by the NBA, have set off reactions of anger and calls for action through the league.

Blackhawks clear case of the Blues

NHL playoffs. Chicago wins first-round playoff series in six games, will face either Minnesota or Colorado next

The Blackhawks celebrate Duncan Keith's third-period goal against goalie Ryan Miller and the Blues during Game 6 of their first-round playoff series in Chicago on Sunday. JONATHAN DANIEL/GETTY IMAGES

First, it was Jonathan Toews on a power play, and then Patrick Sharp got loose on a breakaway. Andrew Shaw tipped one home, and it was all over.

One dazzling stretch for the Chicago Blackhawks put an end to their tight first-round series against the St. Louis Blues.

Duncan Keith had a goal and three assists, and the Blackhawks used a four-goal third period to finish off the Blues with a 5-1 victory in Game 6 on Sunday.

"It feels good to contribute in a big game," Keith said, "and I think just the main thing for me is just being able to move on and get a couple days to relax and just regroup and focus on the next round."

Chicago won four in a row after a slow start in St. Louis. The defending Stanley Cup champions will play the winner of the Minnesota-Colorado series in the Western Conference semifinals. The Avalanche lead the Wild 3-2 heading into Game 6 in Minnesota on Monday night.

Toews, Sharp and Shaw scored in the first 7 1/2 minutes of the third and Keith closed out the scoring as the Blackhawks improved to 14-2 in home playoff games over the past two seasons.

Bryan Bickell scored in the first and Corey Crawford made 35 saves, keeping Chicago in a tie game when St. Louis controlled the second period.

"They were dominating the first 40 minutes here and we came back with maybe the best period of the year," coach Joel Quenneville said.

MLB. Jays ace pitches team back onto winning track

R.A. Dickey, his knuckleball moving like the noggin on his bobblehead giveaway, gave the Toronto Blue Jays a sorely needed quality start Sunday.

And the rest of the team also stepped up, with Brett Lawrie and Edwin Encarnacion combining to drive in four runs in a 7-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Toronto (12-13) leaves for an eight-game road trip, which starts Tuesday in Kansas City, having washed away the taste of a sour four-game losing streak at home.

Dickey (2-3) scattered five hits over 6 1/3 innings, giving up one run and striking out six. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chelsea gets the better of Liverpool

Jose Mourinho riled his former assistant Brendan Rodgers as Chelsea successfully stifled Liverpool and scored twice against the run of play to win 2-0 on Sunday and dent the Premier League leaders' hopes of a first title in 24 years.

Chelsea scored goals at the end of each half from Demba Ba, who seized on Steven Gerrard's slip-up, and Willian ended Liverpool's 11-game winning streak in the league.

Mercury, your ruler, may be moving through the most shy and retiring area of your chart but if past experience is anything to go by that will merely encourage you to redouble your efforts to put on a show.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Keep things simple over the next 24 hours and you won't go wrong. You know what it is that you want, you know where it is you can find it and there is nothing anyone can do to deny you.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Put yourself forward and show what you can do. Employers and others in positions of power are looking for people who are decisive. And that's you.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You may not be entirely convinced that what you are about to do is going to succeed but you have promised others that you will try. Don't let them down!

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
According to the planets you are carrying too much emotional baggage. Once you have confronted your fears you may realize there was little to worry about in the first place.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Someone who is aggressive for no good reason is likely to bring out the worst in you today. No doubt they have not experienced a Scorpio's sting before but it's unlikely they will forget it.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Because you like to be independent you may not enjoy what takes place over the next 24 hours. You may have to fight for your right to set your own agenda and come and go as you please.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
You are full of energy thanks to the approaching eclipse and it's important that you channel it in constructive directions. Don't waste your time on projects that are not challenging enough.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The task you are faced with today may seem daunting but if you attack it in the right way there is no doubt at all you will make a success of it.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Anyone who thinks you lack the spirit of adventure will have to think again as cosmic activity in the most outgoing area of your chart inspires you to try so many new things.
